Schengen Area

Schengen border controls (August 2025)

Executive summary

This document provides details of the internal border controls in the Schengen Area as of 6 August 2025.

Background

- The Schengen Borders Code (SBC) enables Member States to temporarily reinstate controls at internal borders of the Schengen Area in exceptional circumstances, such as situations of significant threat to public order or internal security.
- Reintroduction of such controls must be limited in scope and taken as a measure of last resort in accordance with commonly agreed criteria.
- For predictable events, internal border controls are limited to 30 days or for the foreseeable duration of the event. In these cases, border controls can be extended for up to 30 days per extension, for a maximum period of six months.
- Member States must notify the European Commission and other Member States at least four weeks before a planned reintroduction of border controls. In emergency situations, Member States may reintroduce border controls for up to 10 days without prior notification and inform the Commission and other Member States immediately. In these cases, controls may be extended for up to 20 days per extension, for a maximum period of two months.

Key developments

As of 6 August 2025, 10 Schengen countries have ongoing border controls. Poland extended its existing border control, which is now effective until 14 October 2025. Please see the following page for additional information. Some controls might have been in place since before the dates mentioned in the table below, and the end dates may be extended. See this link for the latest updates.

Impact on employers

The reintroduction of internal border controls leads to additional administrative requirements and delays in travel for individuals crossing internal borders. Employers may stay updated and keep employees informed regarding the latest developments.
